

National Institute of Open Schooling
Senior Secondary Course: Mass Communication(335)
Lesson 16 :Television Programme Production
Worksheet-16

1. What are the different stages of program formulation? Demonstrate through a table.
2. Try to understand the earlier stage of television program production. List the pre-requisites for building an informative programme.
3. You are working as a producer in a television channel. Share with your family what you think about the "stage of television production".
4. With the help of a diagram, show the points involved in the television program production process.
5. Light plays an important role in television program production. In this regard, collect information about Red, Green and Blue light and write about their five uses.
6. Sound recording is an important part of television program production. What are the basics to keep in mind during sound recording? Write a note of 100 words in this regard.
7. Name any five tools used for program planning and explain by writing the utility of the equipment.
8. Classify the various professionals involved in television program production on the basis of their functions and show them through a list.
9. Make a comparative study of outdoor and indoor shooting.